BRITISH AND ANZAC TROOPS IN HEAVY FIGHTING

Vital Battle In North Greece Gaining In Momentum Hourly

GRIM CLASH OF MECHANISED ARMIES

SPECIAL TO "SUNDAY HERALD"

NAZI LEGIONS ARE CLASHING IN THE FULL VIOLENCE OF. MECHANISED COMBAT WITH BRITISH AND GREEK TROOPS IN THE FLORINA SECTOR IN NORTHERN GREECE, IT WAS STATED IN ATHENS YESTERDAY.

The battle is gaining momentum, hourly while simultaneously Greece has given another assurance that she will fight to the very last.

The British and Greek air forces are in constant action against numerically superior German aerial armadas; Axis 'planes launched 16 successive attacks on the Allied positions.

The Greek Press Minister declared in a broadcast that the battle is one of morale against materialism.

FLEETS OF R.A.F. 'PLANES

The Nazis in their operations are meeting with terrific losses, due to the R.A.F.

The brief announcement of the first Anglo-German clash in Greece reported German occupation of Monastir and Jannitsa.

It is semi-officially disclosed that squadrons, even fleets, of R.A.F. 'planes are operating without respite against Nazi mechanised columns seeking to enclose south Greece in similar fashion to the Polish and Flanders campaigns.

"IN SOUTH YUGOSLAVIA, RESISTANCE TO THE GERMAN ADVANCE IS STIFFENING."

The Germans suffered terrific losses in the attack on Monastir when R.A.F. dive-bombers smashed columns of tanks and armoured cars.

WOUNDED MAN'S ORDEAL

A New Zealand soldier, Trocper Ronald Moore, has been awarded the D.C.M., it was announced in London yesterday, for an amazing feat of courage and endurance in the Western Desert fighting against the Italians.

Moore, with a shell-splinter in his foot, was isolated after a battle together with three companions. They had no food and only two-gallon tin of water. Rather than surrendering to the nearest Italian post, they elected to walk 290 miles across the desert to safety. On the third day they ate a tin of plum and apple jam they found in the desert. Two days later one of the men persuaded the others to leave him behind. They ran into a sandstorm and

PARLIAMENT ADJOURNS

SPECIAL TO "SUNDAY HERALD" The House of Commons has adjourned for a holiday, relieving pressure on the War Office regarding the conduct of the Balkan operations till next week — International News Service.

Men of the Empire are playing a big part in Britain's naval war, and it is now impossible to find any warship without "men from the Dominions and Colonies."

Young Canadians, Australians, South Africans and New Zealanders are serving beside men from the Home country both as officers and ratings, Many joined the navy when the war broke out and came to Britain to fight because they did not want to be "left out of it."

A South African engineer in cruiser said: "I wanted to be in the war. I would like to see the world and have a bit of adventure. Now what we want most of all is to go into a sea battle. That's what We are looking forward to." In every ship I visited, men from the Empire have got their hearts in their jobs and it is therefore not surprising that they have earned a high opinion in the

Nice Boys

Service.

The Captain of one ship told me that 30 New Zealanders aboard were some of the nicest sailors he had ever encountered. Several Canadian families have joined the fighting services en bloc. I met one Canadian naval officer who has one brother the Army and another in the Air Force. Recently he received letter from his father, a Toronto ousinessman, saying: "Now there is only me left and I am thinking of volunteering next," -

In 1935, Mr. de Valera

nounced publicly:-"We shall never allow Irish Free State territory to be used as a base for an attack on Britain," The Irish Free State has since changed its name to Eire; and the possibility to which the President referred has become real and near.

Does the pledge still stand for Eire territory?

As a base for the invasion of Britain or in order to lay siege to the heart of the British Empire, Eire has such obvious advantages that an invasion of the Green Isle must be regarded among probable German moves.

The question has been asked: Could Eire de end herself against foreign invasion?

The true answer is that Eire would not have to answer that. question alone,

How could German troops reach Mire? They could only go by ship or by 'plane. In either case, whatever the attitude of the Eire Government — whether De Valera asked our help or not - they would, before reaching that island, have to traverse air or water in which they could, and would, be met by British forces.

Perilous Route

The distance from the nearest point in France to the south coast of Ireland is 300 miles. From the west coast of Norway to the own planes, operating from bases. Donegal coast, round the north of Scotland, is between 800-900 miles, according to the point of highly hazardous expedition from-

Brest and Queenstown, and 25-30 hours to reach Lough Swilly in Donegal after leaving, say, Stavanger in Norway.

If the barge type of transport were used, these times would be doubled, or even trebled.

Considering the nearness our own bases, from which the German Armada could be pounced upon by sea and by air, its losses would be bound to be

Hitler would probably allow for such losses, and would reckon, as he did in Norway, on a sufficient number of survivors landing in Eire to effect a footing until reinforcements could arrive.

Assuming that resistance would be offered, could Eire's defences suffice to deal with what remained of the invading force after running the gaun'let of the British Navy and Air Force?

Wonder

The simple statistics of the matter are that the peace-time strength of the Eire navy is two armed steamboats and a flotilla of torpedo motor-boats, and, of the Eire army, 20,000 men, to which another 60,000 have been added it the last few months by recruitment to the local defence force.

If, say, 400 25-man air trans ports, managed to reach Ireland, that would mean 10,000 picked men, concentrated at key points. against 80,000 partly-trained men scattered throughout the 22 countles of Eire.

All this is a sweeping reyersal of anything there seemed logical reason to expect only a few months ago. It marks a breathtaking change in British power, British tactics and British spirit. It constitutes a stupendous versal because it is perfectly true that Egypt lay wide open for an Italian conquest last July. At that time, because of their unwise reliance upon large French forces in Syria and Tunisia, Britain had less than four divisions in Egypt. Hitler, so certain well-in-formed persons from Berlin have assured me, wanted Mussolini to unleash a great offensive upon Alexandria. It is stated that Hitler urged Mussolini to send his fleet to Alexandria and offered more than 1,000 Nazi dive-bombers as his contribution. Il Duce was afraid to risk his capital ships. I am told that he refused Hitler's order 'and advice.

Thus the Axis powers lost their golden opportunity to seize Nor Africa while Britain was staggered by Dunkirk and the capitulation of a French government which had sworn it would never make a separate peace.

Art Of Swift Warfare

The Libyan campaign was indeed worked out with supreme care and skill, but the British troops also have mastered the art of swift, mechanised warfare. A great part of their dazzling dash from Sidi Barrani through Bar-Tobruk and Derna and past Benghazi, was due to the audacity, improvisation and flexibility of commanding officers and men alike. No German tanks, on any war front, have moved with greater speed and efficiency.
The developments mean that the springboard of Africa has assumed the importance which Ludendorff had in mind. Without naval control of the Mediterranean, it does not appear that Hitler can hope to challenge th British hold on Africa at the present time, or in any discernible future. THE attention of the Department for the Maintenance of the National Morale has been called to the following newspaper headline: "Education Will Go On."

Is this (asks the Director of the Department, Mr. Yaffle)-Is this a threat or a promise?

It refers to a denial by the President of the Board of Education of the rumours that evacuation and other war-time exigencles have reduced the educational system to chaos-rumours which he attributes to the talk of certain 'Dismal Jimmies.'

The President of the Education Board is mistaken (continues Mr. Yaffle) in attributing this rumour of the educational breakdown to pessimists. I had based my chief hope for a better world order after the war on the belief that the younger generation would escape the mental paralysis to which education normally subjects them, and grow up ready to face the problems of world reconstruction with minds unhampered by the usual deadweight of useless information.

Consider this education. As my old friend John Stuart Mill once observed, " a general State education is a mere contrivance for moulding people to be exactly like one another.

The main defence line runs from Lake Ochrida to Olympus. Challenge in front of these positions in the mountains was, never conceived as other than delaying action. Moreover, it has already thrown the German military machine out of gear The gallant Greeks although cut off east of the Vardar River are still holding the main German thrust in the Rupel Pass, and until this defence position is broken, the ability of the Germans to deploy effectively against the allied main line must be seriously handicapped.

Tugoslavia's

Between the boastful bleatings of the Nazi propaganda machine and the comparative silence of the Yugoslav High Command, it is not easy to assess the exact progress of the war in Yugoslavia. It is evident that, if it has not already been accomplished, little can be done effectively to stop the Italians and Germans from joining hands across southern Serbia, and that Croatia is already in German hands. Everything favoured the Hitler war machine. As the aggressor, he could choose the points of main concentration and heaviest thrusts and Yugoslavia thanks to its poor internal communications, hampering swift disworse off than we feared we posal of its reserves to threatened zones, has done as well as could

Chief point to bear in mind about the fighting in Yugoslavia is that the main Serbian Army is intact and that there is no reason. to believe that their military men are less efficient than their fathers, who put up such a terrific fight against .Austria. The difficulty, as so often in this war, is one of munitions. The Serbs have few tanks and only one arsenal, near Beigrade. The defence they make seems to be depend; first, on how effective they can make their guerilla tactics in the hills, and second on the ability of Britain and America to supply them with arms before they are crushed... As long as they get guns and

Mr. Churchill's summary of the invigorating, like his other principal speeches since he became tain and the United States that the climax of the great struggle now being waged may be near. He soberly reviewed events in the Mediterranean and he warned France against any movement of her naval forces in North Africa which might increase Britain's difficulties in this critical hour. He warned that Hitler's commitments elsewhere were not sufficient to remove the threat of an attempted invasion of the British Isles. The battle for Britain of Egypt and the Balkans might have to be waged together. But Battle of the Atlantic the centre of the real struggle. When that has been won. Hitler is doomed.

America In Action

Chief emphasis of Mr. Churchill was upon the need for shipping to replace losses and he did not hesitate to call for the utmost effort from America. Lifting of the Red Sea embargo upon American ashipping, the decision to make use of Greenland as a halfway house, important in convoy work, the lending of further ships for the protection of convoys, all give an earnest of the intentions of President Roosevelt in response. Certainly nothing in the American mood suggests that she will load war supplies into ships to go to the bottom of the Atlantic undeterred by American

IN INTRODUCING my personality for this week. I feel I cannot do better that quote from an article written by a special correspondent for "The China Mail" in the course of the week in reference to the winning of the Governor's Prize at the recent H.K.R.A. Bisley shoot by Police Sgt. Frederick Ernest Russell.

The correspondent wrote: "His victory was most fitting as he has been one of the Colony's leading marksmen for many years and has represented the Colony more often than any other. Experience in rifle shooting can only be gained at the expense of age, and Russell's effort yesterday (last Sunday) is ample proof that his years of shooting have not been wasted. He is undoubtedly one of the best shots ever seen in the Colony."

RUSSELL did his first shooting when serving as a Boy in First Battalion, Hampshire Regiment in 1917. In the course of his Boy service, which extended to 1922, he was required to learn the rudiments of rifle-shooting via the miniature range, but he acquired no love for an activity that he regarded merely as a duty.

At the age of 18 he attained Man Service and though again he was no keener than the average keen soldier about his shooting, he had no difficulty in qualifying annually as a marksman. In the course of the next live years he saw service in Turkey, Egypt and India and during this time he never lost possession of his marksman's badge,

In December 1927 he joined Hong Kong Police and immediately made a reputation for himself as a rifle shot and at the same time developed a liking for the revolver, with which he won two championships between the years

N 1937 Russell again shot for the Colony and in 1938, when on leave, was selected to represent Hong Kong at the Imperial Meeting at Bisley on the first occasion in the history of the Colony that teams were entered in the two Inter-Colonial matches, the Junior Kolapore and Junior Mackinnon. Hong Kong did remarkably well in these competitions and in the Junior Kolapore led up to the last four shots, and then finished only three points behind

Aid To Sallow Skin

Sallow skin is nature's way of telling a woman that all is not well with her physically. When one is enjoying normal health, both mentally and physically, one's skin has a fleshy or pink cast and is firm and clear. When health is impaired, either by worrying too much, or by some physical maladjustment, the skin is robbed of its normal, healthy colouring and appears sallow.

. Improper elimination caused by an unbalanced diet, or sluggish circulation caused by insufficient exercise, will cause a sallow complexion. Nervous indigestion. which is frequently a companion of worry, is another possible cause. These ailments must be remedied at their source before the skin can regain its normal liveliness.

How To Conquer Condition

Incoming, Becoming Hats

THE sole aim in life of a hat, this spring, is to pay you a compliment, That should wring a sigh of relief from you — and lapsing on the nearest bed. Re-your menfolk. Deliberately, hats laxing does not imply a passive state. For example one may do are out to decorate you. No more disorganised excursions into the flip, the daft, the "amusing." If a hat overpowers you, understates you, frightens you, bores you, teeters uneasily, provokes a masculine libe or a feminine laughbehind-the-hand, be assured it has no place in this year's picture.

State. For example one may do some physical work which requires hittle thought to relieve both mental and physical tension. When I come home and have only an hour before my next appointment I take a broom in hand and sweep my apartment thoroughly! There is something about the rhythm of sweeping that interests me but does not stimulate my mind."

DARAMOUNT Studios have a suggestion for a little effort of your own. To make a costume pin take an ordinary wooden hoop of the kind used for hanging drapes and wind it firmly and completely with brightly coloured wool. Dear Mr. Culbortson: The other evening I was trapped by the Blackwood convention. Frequently I tempt fate by playing with three ladies, one of them my wife. Usually something happens when the cards cut me in as my wife's partner. My wife and I are excellent pariners except for reasons: She has no faith in my bidding, and I admit a faltering confidence in hers. Usually she plays her hands well, but erratic bidding in this case placed the responsibility of playing in her hands.

This electrical treatment, now introduced in the United State was originally developed in Rome under the guidance of Prof. U. Cerletti of the Psychiatric University

This use of epileptic fits to battle mental disease is not the first instance where medicine has induced one disease in the hope of destroying another. Even better known is the deliberate production of malaria in the patient with brain syphilis in order to stop the lisease-causing spirochetes.

One of the first drugs used to bring on induced epileptic seizures for healing purposes was camphor. Metrazol is now replacing camphor, because it acts more immediately. But like camphor, is being used reluctantly for the reason that physicians know little about how to bring a patient out of the induced convulsions, And Landlady - "I'll give you just the severity of the convulsions three days in which to pay your cannot easily be controlled.
